

South African Animal Physical Rehab Association

Code of Conduct

Objectives of the Code of Conduct

- This Code serves to indicate proper professional conduct of a Veterinary Physiotherapist.
- SAAPRA will keep a register of members
- To encourage and promote efficient and responsible practise of Veterinary Physiotherapy.

SAAPRA members will:

- Use their skills and knowledge to enhance the welfare of their patients and animals
- Promote good relationships with the Veterinary Health team to ensure optimal care for animals
- Promote good relationships with other members/owners/trainers involved with their patients
- Ensure CPD courses are available to promote evidence based practice for Veterinary Physiotherapists
- Report ill-treatment or abuse of animals to the authorities
- Ensure their clients are equipped to make educated choices in regards to treatment of their animals
- Not be influenced by pressure from third parties to make ill-choices in regards to treatment of their patients
- Ensure all patients are treated, managed and handled in a humane and respectful manner, causing the least amount of distress to achieve treatment goals.
- In all circumstances respect the rights of patients
- Willingly provide veterinary information on patients to owners upon requests.
- Always treat patient information as confidential, unless legislation or an unequivocal ethical duty compels disclosure.
- Recognize their own limitations and to refer to the appropriate Veterinary Health team member
- Report their findings and recommendations back to the referring colleague when asked to consult about a patient.
- Take reasonable steps to consult with other health professionals managing the patient.
- Conduct themselves in a professional manner that is beyond reproach, and take any necessary steps to correct unethical behavior by colleagues, including reporting this to the necessary authorities.
- Endeavour to be familiar with current legislation impacting on professional conduct.
- Take an active role in furthering the profession through participation in society and group matters.
- Scientific standards should be upheld in practice, in research as well as in the ethical creation of new knowledge. Research and the furthering of knowledge need to be promoted.
